

CLASS WAR DAILY

The only daily anarchist newspaper in the world.

MONDAY 18 MAY 2020

On the 20th of March, when the Tories were forced to close the schools after the failure of the "herd immunity" there were 714 new cases and 36 new deaths.

Yesterday there were 3,534 new cases and 170 new deaths.

Coronavirus remains highly infectious, deadly and without a vaccine.

However the party wants to re-open the schools. Well, the state schools at least. The private schools will stay shut. The playing fields of Eton will remain empty. They are making it quite clear whose children are expendable. Yours.

Class War Daily says:

SCHOOLS OUT FOR SUMMER

The Tory government seems obsessed with getting kids back to school for a few weeks when we all know that this will spread the virus and threaten our loved ones. They are pressing for schools to open on June 1st. Today it is quickly becoming apparent that their plans are unravelling because people have had enough.

There is a rebellion against the Tories because everyone has seen what a mess they have made of their pandemic response. Not enough protective equipment in our hospitals and a disaster in our care homes. Over 50,000 dead and people seem unwilling to allow the virus to spread again. NOT IN OUR SCHOOLS!

They say that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton. It is now also clear that the battle against Covid19 was lost on those same fields. It was lost by a political class who care only for making money and they know they can only make money by getting us to work and then getting our kids ready to join in when they're old enough. At Eton, posh kids get playing fields where they learn politics and military tactics. Everywhere else we get schools opening early where the virus will spread like wildfire.

What will an extra few weeks matter if our kids stay virus free and are able to see their grandparents sooner? Surely the health of everyone in the UK is the most important thing? We're not stupid. We can teach them a bit ourselves. On top of this shouldn't we value teachers and urge the unions to keep them safe and virus free too? Lessons can be safely provided online. Teachers should not be forced into unsafe workplaces.

Last week Boris Johnson's weakness started to show as he set out in a televised address what he thought should happen with the easing of lockdown restrictions. Very quickly it disintegrated because the other nations of the UK have powers to go their own way. Johnson is therefore the prime minister of England only and anyone living in England should fear his plans. Thankfully we are the people who can decide if schools are open. There's no point in opening them if people don't send their kids inside. Stay home and keep your kids protected.

Some local authorities are refusing to comply with the Tories. Liverpool is defying the Tories and keeping schools closed. Outside of England, the nations of the UK are in an even more rebellious mood. In Scotland schools won't open full time until August. Schools in Wales will also not reopen on June 1st. In Northern Ireland they will not reopen until September. So when the Tories say that schools are going to reopen in the UK, what they mean is England - every other part of the UK has rebelled against their callous, sickening "business as usual" experiment.

It is an experiment that we must all resist in order to stay safe and keep our children virus free. Remember the three R's: REFUSE, RESIST, REVOLT

CLAP.

I can't even imagine the pain and anger that hearing people call Boris Johnson a hero would bring to the hundreds and thousands of people who have so far lost someone close to them because of this illness.

To pedal an absurd narrative that the government are performing adequately would be nauseating enough but to go singing the praises of the man who from the outset has lied to, hid from and intentionally misled the very people that voted him in?

Less than a week ago the latest figures confirmed that Japan, with a slightly lower GDP per capita than the UK with its population of 126m had had tragically suffered 624 deaths. In the same figures the UK, with its population of 66m was reporting at least 31,855. That's the reality of the situation.

Clap.
Lie. Put the NHS and its workers in an appalling predicament. Clap NHS. label whistleblowers as left wing extremists shamelessly "politicising" events and make it a sackable offence. Clap for dead NHS workers and claim every abject failure a roaring success. Lie. Clap.

Their plan wasn't to protect the economy before the lives of the people. nor was it even to protect the economy instead of the lives of the people. No, it was to protect the economy with the lives of the people.

Then when, after this is over the sums will be done on which country suffered the least financial damage, The UK will be at up top and they will tell us that's something to be proud of.

The death toll tho will be obscene. Simply unfathomable compared to that of other nations, even after it has been doctored and spun and lied about in the way only Tories can - and will.

The British people will be told that whilst there were mistakes to be learned from, it was a job well done. Then they will be told once more that Boris Johnson is a hero and that they as a whole, heartily agree and that they should be getting back to work now, so they will.

Of course there will be more than the usual amount of grieving families and workers who want "justice", and "answers" and people to be held "fully accountable" and such. The poor souls.

Grenfell, Hillsbrough, Bloody Sunday. there always is. So there will be the traditional ceremonial enquiry will be announced to work out what these people believe "went wrong" it will then take years to appoint a judge from within a the tiny group of extraordinarily posh retired judges in their 90s that are deemed fit to oversee such matters. Then it will take years for the routine ceremony wherein any and all those called to give evidence demand legal guarantees from the judge that what they say in testimony will not be used against them. A mere two decades after the event the conclusion will be announced.

Largely inconclusive ofcourse but the brunt of the blame will be laid at the feet of the public and their refusal to obey what they will claim were clear, succinct and strict guidelines that were in place. Few people by that time will remember that they were anything but. Fewer again will care.

English people in particular will take an comfortable lie from over an uncomfortable and daunting truth at every available opportunity, no matter how absurd the lie it seems. It's everywhere this bizarre phenomena, a sort of dads army stockholm syndrome. They will write poems about the lie and clap on their doorsteps even as tens of thousands of their fellow citizens lie dead. They would sooner hail the man who did it to them a hero than accept the uncomfortable, nauseating and terrifying truth of what has happened... to admit to themselves that everything has to change and that change will not be given to us if we ask.

We have to take the power back. The longer we take to do so the harder it will be.

So if not now... when?

FUCK THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON

Working class parents won't stand for Tory privilege at the expense of their own kids' health

All private schools including Eton and Harrow are shut till September using state school kids as canaries down a mine shaft on June 1st to see what damage it does. The revolt of working class parents has shocked Johnson whose own privileged life at Eton has enabled him to become prime minister. Nineteen other old Etonians have been prime ministers - what a fucking coincidence.

"The Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton" so the saying goes meaning by the brilliance of our generals and leaders educated at Eton. Not a mention that it might have been the deaths of thousands of soldiers who gave their lives up for a cause not their own who are not remembered anywhere. Sacrificing the working class has become natural to these old Etonians. From the Duke of Wellington to Gavin Mad Dog Williamson they play with our lives and get our votes.

But Johnson has fucked up big time. In the space of 3 months he has lost the Tories 40% of their support because of his cavalier support of back to school for working class kids. He appointed Gavin 'Mad Dog' Williamson as Defence Secretary, thinking he could do no harm. But straight away Mad Dog threatened to send an aircraft carrier to the South China Sea to intimidate the Chinese Government.

He had unfortunately forgotten that the aircraft carrier was still to undergo sea worthy trials and was not fit for action. If he could take a risk with the aircraft carrier what risks might he take with our kids. Williamson of course is another product of private school and Oxbridge like Johnson himself and Gove, Hancock and Raab. Till now its been the emperor's new clothes as Boris and the old Etonians masqueraded as caring about our class. Mad dog says he wants to help working class children - try jumping of a fucking cliff Gavin.

There will be no social change in the UK till all private schools are abolished - something labour supporters voted for but the leadership sidelined.

So all the private schools are closed till September - what better time then to break lockdown by having a picnic on their playing fields - Eton Harrow Marlborough - send us some photos.

Let the toffs experiment on their own kids - not ours! No return to school on June 1st.
